Getting to Danish Meteorological Institute (DMI)

Address: DMI, Lyngbyvej 100

By public transportation

Ryparken station is situated very close to DMI (a red brick building), and you can get there very easily from central Copenhagen. After descending the stairs from the platform, take the exit on your left. After exiting the building, take the metal stairs on the left. See the map below for directions.

From The Central Station

Take the S-train line A (Blue) towards Farum and get off at Ryparken St. Monday to Saturday the train goes every 10 minutes at daytime and takes approx. 15 minutes.

From Kongens Nytorv

Take the metro to Nørreport (1 stop) goes every 2-3 minutes and change (see below).

From Nørreport

Take the S-train line A (Blue) towards Farum and get off at Ryparken St. Alternatively it is possible to take the bus (line 150 S (fast - 10 min), 173E (extra fast – 7 min), 185, 184, 14 (15 min)) and get off at Ryparken St. If in doubt - ask the busdriver.

From Copenhagen Airport

Take the Øresund Train towards Helsingør and get off at Hellerup St. It takes approx. 30 min. and goes every 5 minutes from the airport. At Hellerup St., change to the S-train line F (Yellow, goes every 5 min.) towards Ny Ellebjerg St. and get off at Ryparken St. (next station right after Hellerup St.).

For other directions with public transport the link <http://www.rejseplanen.dk/> is very helpful (you can change language in the upper right corner).

Remember to buy tickets before you enter the train!

A single ticket for all public transportation in Copenhagen city area costs 24 DKK (valid for one hour) and a blue 10-ride punch card costs 150 DKK. A single ticket from the airport to DMI costs 48 DKK or two punches. Use the yellow punch-box at the platform. A ticket-machine is found near the platform.

Going by taxi

Typically a Taxi to DMI will cost around 350 DKK from the airport and 150 DKK from the centre of Copenhagen.
